

Susie Wokoma

Birth:

Born in 1987, in Elephant and Castle.

Early Years:

Susie Wokoma grew up in Southwark. She made her television debut at 14 as a participant in CBBC's Serious Jungle. She was a member of the National Youth Theatre, before enrolling at RADA.

"My agenda for writing is so clear now – I'm putting black women at the centre of everything."

– Susie Wokoma

Achievements:

Since graduating, Susie has appeared in the television series Chewing Gum, Misfits and Crashing. In 2016, she won Best Supporting Actor at the BBC Audio Drama Awards, for her role in Marie N'Diaye's Three Strong Woman. In 2017, Wokoma was listed as one of Europe's Forbes Top 30 under 30's, and named a 'BAFTA Breakthrough Brit' by an international jury, later that same year.

Current Status:

Susie is the voice of Princess Talanji in 2018's World of Warcraft: Battle for Azeroth, popular World of Warcraft game and is also a script-writer. Most recently, she has joined the writing team at Netflix.

